Honor God (Exodus 20:7-11; Psalm 145:1-7)

The Point: Our relationship with God is seen in how we honor Him.

The Bible Meets Life: We know all about honor and worship because we do it all the time.

Football fans show both honor and worship through their conduct and commitment. A football game involves roughly only seventeen minutes of actual action. When you remove huddles, getting back to the line of scrimmage, and other things that take place during a game, you're left with around seventeen minutes of actual plays being run.

Yet football fans willingly spend up to three hours watching a game that provides only seventeen minutes of action. If you actually go to the game, you need to add drive time, parking, walking to the stadium, and then sitting in traffic gridlock when the game is over. But have you ever heard a football fan complain that the game went too long? No, because when we love and honor something, we willingly commit our time to it.

Translate that willingness and enthusiasm over to our spiritual lives and matters like church attendance, personal Bible study, or prayer. Too many of us are satisfied with a quick five-minute devotion and short prayer. The Ten Commandments call us to honor God, but are we doing that?

Live It Out: Repent. Confess to God any times you misused the name of God and failed to honor Him with your life. Journal. Journaling is a great way to identify the pressing thoughts on your heart and mind. When you sit down to write, the natural flow of your thinking comes out. Take a moment each day this week to journal about your relationship with God and thoughts about Him. Let your own words reveal to you how much you honor and worship Him. Share. Consider how you can share a testimony of how great God is and the great acts He has done. Seek to share a testimony of God and His power in your life with others you communicate with during the week. Go ahead and brag on God. He deserves it.
